Those persons who were privileged to meet that very charming young woman. Miss Pangbourne, who visited Mrs. Azby Chouteau for several weeks, are telling a pleasant little joke with reference to the Baltimore beauty.

It happened the night of the St. Louis Club garden party.

Miss Pangbourne, who came with John Barrett, the newly made Argentine Minister, Mr. Pierre Chouteau, Mrs. Azby Chouteau and George Wallace Niedringbaus, was a pleasantly conspicuous figure in s white crepe frock that filled all the other women with envy. She is extremely viracious and entertaining and had an interesting group about her all evening.

When the Chinese party arrived, four or five in number, General Fitzhugh Lee and his escort of townsmen gathered about the Colectials and included in as vigorous a chat as could be expected under the cir The Chinese you know, do not speak English with great fluency. Among the Oriental party was a Japanese or two. When Miss Panghourne was introduced she returned to her friends and said gleefully:

"Oh, I know one Japanese word! Do let me say it to that intellectual looking young man," going forward as she spoke until within speaking range of the Orlental party.

"Now, Miss Pangbourne has been educated abroad and has no less than five t anguages at her tongue's end. So it was by no means surprising that she should know at least one word of Japanese and the others urged her to display her proficiency. Accordingly, picking out the Ce- 1 lestial that appeared the most interesting, she "sprang" the word, which sounded fully a yard long, as somebody said after

This time she had picked her man correctly. He was a real Jap. He listened with great deference and greater politeness while Miss Pangbourne again smiled and gave utterance to her one and only Japa-nese word of many syllables and much in-the prettiest young woman in the garden. "Me no understand Russian," he said in a oft voice.

Miss Pangbourne, entre-nous, still insists that her one word was good Japanese.

Miss Josephine Walsh's engagement to Captain John Savage Bates of Annapolis was noised abroad last week and created a considerable flutter in West End society that has not yet departed for summer homes. Miss Walsh is the third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julius S. Walsh and a very popular member of society. She came out two years ago, after taking a post-graduate course of study at Georgetown Convent. The wedding is to be a midwinter affair, and probably quite as pretentious as that of her next older sister, Mrs. Will Maffitt, who was Ellen Walsh. Miss Josephine Walsh was a maid of hon-or last year for the Velled Prophet.

Have you studied feminine belts this sum mer? 'Tis well worth your while if you are a feminine person. If of the opposite sex you won't be especially interested farther than to note that the girl whom you take to the gardens or the ball game or on whose cool veranda you spend many of your evenings, is usually girt about the waist with something that makes her look amazing slim and slender and shapely. But those of us who have the mental worry of belts are not averse this summer to hearing a few hints.

If you are wearing white almost con-stantly this summer—that is, thin white frocks of "tub" materials and pleated ones of white exford, linen or similar stuffsthen wear white beits altogether. For the thin things use white ribbons carelessly knotted in the back, with the ends allowed to float, or else a very wide ribbon brought tightly round the waist and tied in a very close butterfly, bow in the back with reclose butterfly bow in the back with no ends that are longer than the bows. For the heavier white gowns choose either a straight stitched belt of the same material as the gown, or white suede, which is smart, but expensive, as it solin so soon. If you are wearing a long-coated white linen gown, to be belied in at the waist, and like to vary the white occasionally, get a shiny black parent learns to be. as shiny black patent-leather belt and wear at the same time a black satin stock with white turn-over. With some black on your white straw hat you are very much in style and quite good to look upon.

A shirt-waist suit of the cool foulards, navy blue polka-dotted taffetas, or gun-metal gray brilliantines, invariably take a belt of the same.

The girl who wears a neat and clean-locking linen gown in its natural color may brighten it effectively with a red beit and wear a dash of red in her hat—therries in a chon, a scarlet bow or wing. Don't do this with the thermometer over 100, how-and daintiest in society stationery.

The shirt wast girl may show infinite variety in her belts.
Usually it is black. Once and awhile you see a patent leather. More often a black-stitched taffeta or else one of those open-work affairs that look like crochet, but are not, and which fit into the figure beautifully. They are simple and most inexpensive and finished in front with a neat metal buckle. Then they have the additional advantage of being girded to any de-sired size without the usual and annoying

Don't wear a belt of the same material as your shirt waist unless you are very short-waisted and want to remedy that defect. A belt to your outing skirt of cloth with postillors at the back, is in good styleand very serviceable. SERENA LAMB.
